PREFACE.

THE following account of the family of Bayley of Manchester and Hope was originally reprinted from the Transactions of the Antiquarian Society of Lancashire and Cheshire for 1889, and is now re-issued at the request of several members of the family. It has been rearranged and is so much enlarged that it is practically a new work. The author has to express his thanks to the members of the family who have kindly assisted him, and especially to Lady BAYLEY, the widow of Sir EDWARD CLIVE BAYLEY, K.C.S.I., Mrs. EDWARD BAYLEY, Mrs. MACNAMARA, Mrs. JOHN ARTHUR FOWLER, Mrs. J. A. HARRIS, Sir STEUART COLVIN BAYLEY, K.C.I.E., Mr. THOMAS BAYLEY POTTER, M.P., the late Dr. W. C. HENRY, F.R.S., and Mr. FRANCIS S. BAYLEY. Mr. W. A. SHAW, M.A., Mr. T. CANN HUGHES, M.A., and Mr. JOHN OWEN have also rendered assistance. To Sir STEUART BAYLEY the author is also indebted for the opportunity of reproducing, as a frontispiece, the view of Hope Hall as it existed in the time of Thomas Butterworth Bayley.

I.

THOMAS BAYLEY, of Deansgate, Manchester, silk weaver.<sup>1</sup> From 1647 to 1679 he acted frequently as an office holder under the Court Leet, as officer for mastiff dogs and for forestallers and regrators of the market, as market looker for white meat, as mise gatherer, and in various other capacities. In 1651 and several later years he was one of the jury.<sup>2</sup> In 1661 he took the oath of allegiance, and in 1668 was assessed at 1s. 4d. for his house in Deansgate. He was buried at the Collegiate Church, 28th August, 1688. His administration bond, preserved at Chester, is printed below:—

15th August, 1649.

Church, 8th September, 1664, to Theophilus Astle.

3. TIMOTHY, bap. 28th December, 1645; bur. 19th January, 1646-7.

4. THOMAS, bap. 6th June, 1647.

officer for Markett Street Lane, bylaw man for Deansgate, and market looker for weights and measures. In 1684 he was fined for not keeping in repair the street before his house.<sup>1</sup> He died before his father, his death being referred to by the Rev. Henry Newcome,<sup>2</sup> under date 23rd February, 1684-5: "Dan Bayley died this morning." He was buried at the Collegiate Church on the following day. Administration to his estate was granted 14th March, 1684-5, to "Sara Baley widow, relict of the deceased."

Daniel Bayley was married by licence, dated 25 Car. II. and filed at Chester,<sup>3</sup> to Sarah, daughter of the Rev. James Bradshaw, of Darcy Lever. She was baptized at Wigan, 15th September, 1650.<sup>4</sup> After the death of her husband she appears to have continued his business. She is mentioned in the Court Leet Records in 1686 and 1687, and on 22nd May, 1690, was assessed at o. 1. o. for the poll tax.<sup>5</sup> She was buried in the Collegiate Church, 30th July, 1695, and her will, dated 26th April, 1695, was proved at Chester on 14th August following.

The children of Daniel and Sarah Bayley were:—

1. JAMES, of whom presently.
2. ELIZABETH, bap. 17th February, 1675-6, at Collegiate Church.
3. ANNE, bap. 21st November, 1678, at Collegiate Church.

III.

JAMES BAYLEY, of Manchester, merchant. He was baptized at the Collegiate Church, 4th February, 1673-4. In 1703 he was churchwarden.<sup>1</sup> In 1721 he was one of the undertakers for making the Mersey and Irwell navigable.<sup>2</sup> At the time of the rebellion, in 1745, he was the oldest and one of the most prosperous of the Manchester merchants, and, as he was also a Whig, he was amongst those to whom, on 9th December, 1745, the young Pretender, then on his retreat from Derby, addressed a warrant "to raise from the town £5,000 against the next day by four o'clock on pain of military execution." It was thought impossible to do this considering the sums, amounting to nearly £3,000, that had been extorted from the town before. Next morning, 10th December, 1745, a number of the inhabitants "waited on the Pretender to acquaint him with the impossibility of raising the money, and to endeavour to have the payment excused. Upon this he mitigated it to £2,500, and sent a warrant for that sum to be levied upon Manchester and Salford by one o'clock; and while methods were being contrived how to procure it, three or four of the rebels seized Mr. James Bailey, senior, took him to Secretary Murray at the Pretender's lodgings, and told him he must be prisoner till it was paid; and if it was not paid he must go with them. Mr. Bailey excused himself by saying he was betwixt seventy and eighty years old, and, to his remembrance, had not lain a night out of his own bed for two years, nor could bear travel. He was told, if he could not ride, they would endeavour to get him a wheel carriage. Mr. Bailey said his confinement was an obstruction to the raising of the money, and that if he was at liberty he might borrow some. The Secretary brought an answer, that the Prince, in consideration of his age, if he would give him his word and honour to fetch him £2,500 in two hours or surrender himself a prisoner, consented he should have his liberty so long. This Mr. Bailey agreed to, and went to the coffee-house where a great number of the inhabitants were; and it being proposed that Mr. Bailey and Mr. Dickinson should give promissary notes, payable in three months, to such as would lend any money; it was agreed to, and the money being thereby procured was paid about two o'clock."<sup>1</sup>

Dr. Byrom's journals give a similiar account of the matter, though it has been said by some writers that Mr. Bayley was seized by the rebels when on their way to Derby, and that he was not released until their retreat. Mr. Bayley is sometimes described as of Hope Hall, but it is doubtful if he ever resided there. As late as 1744 Mr. Thomas Bradshaw is given in a list of ley payers as the occupant of Hope.<sup>2</sup> There is no doubt that for the greater part of his life he resided in Bayley's Court, Market Place. His house there is no longer standing, but Mr. John Owen saw it in 1864, and has kindly given me this description: "At the bottom of this Court is a tolerably large house of brick, three stories in height, exclusive of the cellar, the stories being divided by a couple of plain stone string-courses. The front has five windows to each story, except the lower one, which has the doorway in the centre under a round arch; the windows have flat arches of brick, and appear to be twice as long as broad. In some of them are the original framework, having a central mullion or stanchion with a transom in the upper part. The eaves project considerably, supported by brackets, and immediately underneath is a border of ornamental plaisterwork. The base of the building, to a height of about three feet, is of stone and weathered. On the leaden spout which is against the face of the building is the following inscription, I<sup>B</sup>S 1707, the initials of James and Sarah Bayley. The entrance leads to a square oak staircase, and the internal walls are of timber and plaister." James Bayley died on the 6th April, 1753, and was buried in the north aisle of the chancel of the Collegiate Church.

James Bayley married on 3rd January, 1698, Sarah, daughter of Samuel Kirkes, of Chester. Mrs. Bayley was buried 8th January, 1719-20, at the Collegiate Church.

The children of James and Sarah Bayley were:—

1. DANIEL, of whom presently.
2. SAMUEL, bap. 16th December, 1701; bur. at Collegiate Church, 4th January, 1701-2.
3. JAMES, of whom below (Pedigree C).
4. JOHN, bap. 23rd February, 1707-8; bur. 1st July, 1709.
5. SARAH, born 12th May, bap. 22nd May, 1710; married 4th March, 1734, at the Collegiate Church, to John Touchet, of Manchester, merchant, and one of the trustees of Cross Street Chapel. From this marriage descended, amongst others, Hannah Touchet, wife of Archdeacon Bayley, William Harrison Ainsworth, the novelist, J. Bower Harrison, M.D., the Rev. John Harrison, Ph.D., the late Mrs. Farrington, of Worden, and Mrs. Nicholas J. Ridley.

6. MARY, bur. 29th March, 1713.

7. SAMUEL, of whom presently (Pedigree D).

8. BENJAMIN, bur. 28th September, 1722.

IV.

DANIEL BAYLEY, of Hope Hall, eldest son of James and Sarah Bayley, was born 13th October, 1699. He seems to have been at an early age associated with his father in business, and in 1721 was one of the undertakers for making the rivers Mersey and Irwell navigable. It is probable that he retired while still a young man. In 1732, when he was described as "gentleman," he was appointed a trustee of Cross Street Chapel, where he was a regular attendant, and remained in the trust until his death. In June, 1749, Daniel Bayley went to reside at Hope Hall, in the parish of Eccles, a property which had belonged to his distant kinsfolk the Bradshaws, and a few years later rebuilt it on the old foundations. He is said to have been a deputy-lieutenant for the county,<sup>1</sup> and he served occasionally as a grand juryman at the Lancaster assizes. He took an interest in science, and under his auspices and on his estate Samuel Smethurst and Peter Clare observed in 1761 the transit of Venus. Eight years later the hall was again placed at their disposal for a similar purpose by Daniel Bayley's son. Daniel Bayley was an energetic Dissenter; his name appears first of those appended to the circular calling the first general meeting for the foundation of the Warrington Academy, and he gave £100 to be held on the same trusts as the £500 which had been given by his wife's grandmother, Ann Butterworth, for binding apprentice the children of poor Protestant Dissenting ministers and decayed tradesmen. He died 14th May, 1764, and is said to have been buried in a vault he had made in Hart's Hill Meadow, behind Hope Hall, and to have been subsequently interred in the family vault in Eccles Church. In opposition to this it is stated by Sir Thomas Baker<sup>1</sup> that he was buried in Cross Street Chapel, where "the words on the stone are not 'In memory of,' &c., but 'Here lie the remains of,' &c."

Daniel Bayley was twice married. His first wife, whom he married in 1717,<sup>2</sup> was Elizabeth, daughter and coheirress of Nathaniel Gaskell, of Manchester. Mrs. Bayley's two sisters married respectively Hugh, eleventh Lord Sempill, and Richard Clive, M.P., of Styche. Mrs. Clive's son, Robert, afterwards the celebrated Lord Clive, lived for several years with Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Bayley, at Manchester, and was trained and educated by Mr. Bayley as though he had been his own son. At the end of 1728 the little fellow, then only two years old, had a dangerous attack of fever, on which occasion Mr. Bayley wrote to Styche: "Thank God, I do now inform you that Bob continues better, and is in a very likely way to recover. We hope that the crisis of the fever was on Saturday last, about noon, it having abated ever since. His exceeding patience is also exchanged for as eminent a degree of crossness, which we take as a good omen of his mending. I am writing this close to his bedside, and he is crying with the greatest impatience for me to be on the bed with him; nor will he be quiet one moment, with all the fine words I can give him, which now makes me conclude abruptly." Young Clive had a relapse, but by January he was well again, and "with some reluctance suffered his Aunt Bay to go to Chapel." The chapel here mentioned is the Presbyterian, now Unitarian, Chapel in Cross Street, Manchester, at which the Bayley family were at that time regular attendants, and of which Nathaniel Gaskell, Clive's grandfather, was one of the founders, and is named first in the earliest trust deed. In 1732 Mr. Bayley wrote: "I hope I have made a little further conquest over Bob, and that he regards me in some degree as well as his Aunt Bay. He has just had a new suit of clothes, and promises by his reformation to deserve them. I am satisfied that his fighting (to which he is out of measure addicted) gives his temper a fierceness and imperiousness, and he flies out upon trifling occasion; for this reason I do what I can to suppress the hero, that I may help forward the valuable qualities of meekness, benevolence, and patience. I assure you, sir, it is a matter of concern to us, as it is of importance to himself, that he may be a good and virtuous man, to which no care of ours shall be wanting." Plassy showed that the worthy uncle was unable to "suppress the hero" in his young charge. Long afterwards, when Clive was far away in India, his thoughts would turn back to his pleasant Lancashire home, to the unpretending chapel frequented by his Presbyterian relatives, to his juvenile encounters and battles, and to all the other circumstances that made him sigh for what, in one of his letters, he calls "dear, delightful Manchester." In another letter he says, "If I could be so far blest as to revisit again my own country, but more especially Manchester, the centre of all my wishes, and all that I could hope for or desire would be presented before me in one view." Mr. Bayley lived long enough to see Clive the most famous man of his age. Mrs. Bayley died 26th February, 1734-5, in her thirty-fifth year, and on the 12th April following her only child, Elizabeth, died, aged two. Mother and child were buried in the Collegiate Church, Manchester.

Mr. Daniel Bayley's second wife was Anne, daughter and coheirress (with her sisters, Lady Hoghton and Mrs. Joddrell, afterwards the Hon. Mrs. George Sempill) of Thomas Butterworth, of Manchester, gentleman, by his wife, Frances, daughter of Sir Robert Dukinfield, baronet. Mr. Butterworth's father, Thomas Butterworth, was a leading Manchester merchant, and had married Ann Crowther, a niece of Sir Edward Mosley, of Hulme, knight, and a cousin of Sir Robert Booth, lord chief justice of the common pleas in Ireland. Mrs. Bayley was born 25th March, 1713, and was married 24th June, 1736. At her marriage she had not been dealt with by father so generously as her sister Lady Hoghton, who had a marriage portion of £8,000, but her father, who died in 1745, by his will dated 25th December, 1744, made further provision for her, as is shown by the following abstracts: "To his daughter Anne wife of Mr Daniel Bayley, he had already given £3800 and he now further bequeaths for life All those two messuages or dwelling houses with the appurtenances situate and being near the Cross in Manchester aforesaid in the several occupations of John Berry & John Bracegirdle or their respective Undertenants Also all those two Messuages or dwelling Houses with the app<sup>s</sup> situate & being in a certain street called the Smithy Door in Manchester aforesaid in the several occupations of Richard Jackson and Magdalene Whitworth widow or their respective Undertenants And also all my Messuages Farmes and Tenements lying and being in Chadderton in the said County of Lancaster with the Lands & Hereditaments thereunto respectively belonging or therewith respectively occupied & enjoyed And also that Yearly Rent or sum of Two Pounds issuing or payable out of a Messuage & Lands near Coleshau in Chadderton aforesaid And also all those two other Messuages or dwelling Houses with the Gardens Stables and Appurtenances thereunto belonging or therewith respectively occupied & enjoyed at or near a place called Tinker Lane within Oldham in the said County of Lancaster now in the occupation of Samuel Taylor and John Lees or their respective undertenants," with remainder to Thomas Butterworth Bayley, the second son, and heirs (the first son being provided for). "Also I give & bequeath all those my Messuages and Lands situate in or near a certain Street called Deansgate in Manchester aforesaid & also my Messuage & Lands in Newton in the Parish of Manchester aforesaid (which Messuage & Lands I hold by three several Leases for years from the Warden & Fellows of the Collegiate Church of Manch<sup>r</sup> aforesaid) unto my said daughter Anne for life—and to any child she may limit”—her Ex<sup>ts</sup> &c.

“Also I give unto my said dāur Anne £80 due to me upon Mortgage from Jacob Taylor of Chadderton aforesaid.” Residue amongst 3 Daughters equally.

Mrs. Bayley survived her husband thirty years. In her later years she lived in a house at the corner of St. Ann's Square (on the site now occupied by Heywood's Bank), which had been her father's. Her stately manners made such an impression on the youthful mind of Samuel Hibbert Ware, the antiquary, whose father lived opposite to Mrs. Bayley, that in after years whenever he met any severe-looking old lady he would style her “Madam Bayley.”<sup>2</sup> She died at St. Ann's Square, 3rd March, 1795, aged eighty-two, and was buried at Cross Street. Daniel and Anne (Butterworth) Bayley had issue:—

1. JAMES, born 5th April, 1737; died 3rd July, 1746, aged ten; bur. at Cross Street.

2. FRANCES, born 15th April, 1738; died 3rd May, 1742, aged five; bur. at Cross Street.

V.

THOMAS BUTTERWORTH BAYLEY, the only survivor of the children of Daniel Bayley, was born at Manchester, 20th June, 1744, and was educated at Edinburgh University. Shortly after succeeding his father, he was sworn a justice of the peace for the county of Lancaster, and he threw himself into his magisterial work with great energy. At the early age of twenty-four he was appointed high sheriff, and for a number of years he acted as chairman of quarter sessions, and as receiver of duchy rents. He was elected F.R.S., 18th February, 1773. In 1774 he offered himself as a candidate for the borough of Liverpool, but did not go to the poll.<sup>1</sup>

Of course so prominent a magistrate could not escape the Rev. Thomas Seddon when he was looking round for victims to impale in the Characteristic Strictures. Consequently he appears in that interesting work, published in 1779, as follows:—

“Thomas B. B—ley, Esq., Hope.

The figure of Hope.

“Among the various attempts of this artist we have not seen one tolerable performance. Had he modestly confined himself to single figures he might probably have been more successful; to represent numbers is infinitely superior to his powers. We cannot, however, give him much credit for this figure; the attitude is too presumptive for Hope and the cable too slender for the weight of the anchor."

And in a foot note Seddon says: "His ambition has led him to offer himself a candidate for several boroughs in the county, but these and many other examples of Quixotism, with a variety of curious anecdotes, will be particularly described in the history of his life, which is speedily to be published." Seddon refers to him again in ironical terms in the dedication of a sermon printed in 1780; but what was the nature of the quarrel between the clergyman and magistrate I have not been able to ascertain.<sup>1</sup> Bayley took part in all the patriotic

"To Thomas Butterworth Bayley, Esq.; High-Sheriff of the County Palatine of Lancaster, the following Essay is with the highest Respect, for his Distinguished Abilities, and the sincerest Esteem, for his Amiable Character, inscribed by his affectionate, and most obedient Servant

"THOMAS PERCIVAL."

(Percival's Experiments and Observations on Water, 1769.)

"To Thomas Butterworth Bayley, Esq., of Hope,

"Fellow of the Royal Society.

"Sir,—It gives me the highest Satisfaction and Pleasure, that you have condescended to receive this my first Essay under your Protection. And all who are honoured with your Friendship, and are acquainted with your superior knowledge in polite and useful Learning, in which you have justly included the Science of Numbers, will be sensible of my Happiness in being thus permitted to address you.

"Were my Abilities, Sir, equal to my Wishes, I could with Pleasure dilate on those excellent Qualifications, adorned with the utmost Good-nature and Humanity, which have rendered your Character so conspicuous. But, as I well know I should fail in the attempt, the only Use I can make of this opportunity, is, to testify my Regard to so generous a efforts in the neighbourhood, and no scheme for the amelioration of the condition of the people was carried out without his assistance. In 1782 he was lieutenant-colonel of the Manchester Military Association. In 1797 he took an active part in raising the Manchester and Salford Volunteers, subscribing twenty guineas towards

Patron, by publicly acknowledging the many Favours which I, however undeserving, have received at your Hands, and which I shall always remember with the sincerest gratitude.—I am, Sir, your most obliged and obedient Servant,

"HENRY CLARKE."

(Dr. Henry Clarke's Rationale of Circulating Numbers, 1777.)

"To Thomas Butterworth Bayley, Esq.

"To introduce a publication of a political nature to the world, under the protection of a Great Man, is to ensure it a general reading by the Publick.—I therefore humbly dedicate the following Declamation to my most worthy Friend, Mr. Bayley,—trusting on his neighbourly affection to support me against the malignity of partial Commentators, or the attacks of dissatisfied Fanatics; and I am the more inclined to confide in this expectation, from the many observations made upon his publick, as well as private Conduct, both which declare his sincere attachment to the King and dutiful attention to the privileges of the Crown.

"As a Magistrate,—his Worship is so strenuous a defender of the Laws, that even those which are generally esteemed lenient,—when dealt out with his spirited exertion,—have in their consequences,—by moderate Men,—unwittingly been called severe.

"As a private Gentleman, he is so indefatigable to rectify every Grievance, that even the shadow of complaint cannot escape him, for with becoming activity he investigates the cupboard of every cottager in his neighbourhood,—with a manifest intention to suppress Luxury in its infancy, knowing by Family experience, that AEs in presenti perfectum format, and how difficult it is to soar above the loathsome Habitation of a Cellar,—without Temperance and Industry.

"From the above considerations I am persuaded, Mr. Bayley will not be displeased with this, tho' hasty attempt to vindicate the rights of Majesty, and to give evidence against the Stratagems of Treason, especially as it will discover to him a wish,—to follow his own laudable example of extracting another Name from deep obscurity.

"I am with much Gratitude, for the unmerited favours Mr. Bayley has so repeatedly conferred upon me, his most oblig'd and very humble Servant, the initial expenses,<sup>1</sup> and becoming colonel of the regiment on its embodiment. The work in which he took the greatest interest, however, was the improvement of prisons. An earnest disciple of John Howard, he became convinced of the necessity for a prison on the modern plan to replace the old House of Correction, which was then in a disgraceful condition. With characteristic energy he overcame all opposition to his project; a site was selected, and in 1787 Mr. Bayley laid the first stone of the New Bayley Prison.<sup>2</sup> In 1790 the place was finished, but when, as chairman of quarter sessions, Mr. Bayley charged the grand jury, he had to speak of the death of Howard only a few weeks before the completion of one of the earliest of the prisons constructed in entire accordance with his views. The name of the prison has excited some discussion; the question in dispute is whether it is called the New Bailey after the Old Bailey in London, or whether it owed its name as well as existence to Mr. Butterworth Bayley. That during Mr. Bayley's lifetime the name was usually spelled as he spelled his name there can be no doubt, but it is equally certain that the next chairman of quarter sessions, who did not share Mr. Bayley's political views, was disinclined to allow the honour of the name to his Whig predecessor, and always insisted that the gaol was named after the prison in London and not after Mr. Bayley.<sup>3</sup>

In 1794, the grand jury, of which Mr. Bayley was foreman, requested the high sheriff to make efforts for the amelioration of the condition of the debtors in Lancaster Gaol.<sup>1</sup> In 1796 Mr. Bayley was elected president of the newly-formed Manchester Board of Health.<sup>2</sup> Working on the lines of a plan drawn up at his request by Dr. John Ferriar, the board established the House of Recovery, an institution now amalgamated with the Royal Infirmary. Mr. Bayley was one of the first vice-presidents of the Literary and Philosophical Society,<sup>3</sup> and was the first promoter of the Manchester Humane Society in 1791; and when, in 1787, a society was formed in Manchester for the purpose of effecting the abolition of the slave trade, he and his mother were amongst the subscribers, and Mr. Bayley was elected a member of the first committee of the society.<sup>4</sup> It is worth mentioning that so early as 1788 Mr. Bayley advocated the substitution of paid constables for the then universal honorary constables.<sup>5</sup>

Mr. Bayley's leisure was devoted to agriculture, and it is to him that we owe the elms at Hope Hall. He was one of the founders of the Manchester Agricultural Society, and was awarded, by that society, several premiums; and he was an honorary member of the Board of Agriculture in London. Thomas B. Bayley was the author of several pamphlets, principally on agricultural topics, a list of which will be found in the appendix. Mr. Bayley's religious beliefs were broad. He was from 1778 to 1802 a trustee of Cross Street Chapel,<sup>1</sup> and he was also a vice-president of the Warrington Academy.<sup>2</sup> It is related that on the occasion of the presentation of colours to the regiment, of which Mr. Bayley was colonel, there was a religious service at St. Ann's. It happened to be St. Matthew's Day, when the Athanasian Creed is appointed to be read in churches. Mr. Hall, in deference to the Presbyterian colonel, omitted this portion of the service, an action which lost Mr. Hall the chaplaincy of the Collegiate Church, which became vacant about that time.<sup>3</sup> He was an original seatholder and trustee of St. John's, Deansgate, the first incumbent of which was an earnest Swedenborgian.<sup>4</sup> Mr. Bayley was also an attendant at Eccles Church. Charles Hulbert, in his Memoirs of an Eventful Life, says: "I remember with reverence that worthy magistrate, chairman of the Salford quarter sessions, Thomas Butterworth Bayley, Esq. The first sermon for a Sunday school that I ever heard was at Eccles Church, when the justice bare-headed took his place at the church door with his box in his hand, repeatedly soliciting the congregation as it passed him, 'To remember the poor,' 'Do remember the poor.'"

Thomas Butterworth Bayley died, from mortification of the bowels, at Buxton, on 24th June, 1802, and was buried at Eccles, and in the parish church there is EVER TEMPERING JUSTICE WITH MERCY; A LIBERAL GUARDIAN AND INSTRUCTOR OF THE POOR; A ZEALOUS FRIEND; AN INTERESTING COMPANION: A HOSPITABLE NEIGHBOUR; A LOVER OF HIS COUNTRY AND MANKIND: AND A DEVOUT CHRISTIAN: THIS TABLET IS GRATEFULLY AND AFFECTIONATELY INSCRIBED, BY HIS WIDOW AND CHILDREN. HE DIED JUNE 24TH, 1802, AGED 57 YEARS.

MARY BAYLEY HIS WIDOW, LIES BURIED IN THE SAME VAULT BENEATH. SHE DIED AT THE FRIARY, LICHFIELD, SEPT. 5TH, 1818, AGED 70 YEARS.

“ THE HEART OF HER HUSBAND DID SAFELY TRUST
IN HER,
HER CHILDREN ROSE UP AND CALLED HER BLESSED,
IN HER TONGUE WAS THE LAW OF KINDNESS,
AND SHE STRETCHED OUT HER HAND TO THE POOR.”

Thomas Butterworth Bayley married, at Tottenham Parish Church, 17th September, 1765, Mary, daughter of Vincent Leggatt, of Tottenham. By this lady he had issue:—

1. DANIEL (Sir), eldest son, born at Hope, 14th September, 1766, was educated at the Manchester Grammar School, which he entered 6th October, 1776, and at the Warrington Academy (admitted 1782). He became a merchant at St. Petersburg, being a partner in the great Russian house of Thorntons and Bayley (firm dissolved 30th April, 1810). He was appointed, 9th October, 1812. His Britannic Majesty's

Consul-General at St. Petersburg, and was also agent to the Russia company.<sup>1</sup> He was knighted 20th June, 1815, and his services as chargé d'affaires, during the absence of the English ambassador, were also rewarded by the knighthood of the Hanoverian Guelphic Order. Sir Daniel, some years after his father's death, sold the Hope estate, and had henceforward little connection with his native county, but he was a member of the Manchester Agricultural Society, and a justice of the peace and deputy-lieutenant for the county of Lancaster.<sup>2</sup> He died 21st June, 1834, and was bur. in his maternal grandfather's grave at Tottenham.<sup>3</sup> Sir Daniel Bayley was twice married, first at St. Petersburg, 6th November, 1790, to Eleanor Saffree. She died at Hope, 13th September, 1793, aged twenty-seven. Sir Daniel married secondly, at St. Petersburg, 24th March, 1800, Maria Barbara Fock, who died 19th May, 1854, aged seventy-nine, and was bur. at Leamington, and by whom he had an only child:—

1. MARY, born at Hope, 22nd February, 1801; died at Leamington, 3rd May, 1878.

2. THOMAS LEGGATT, born 6th October, 1767; died 6th September, 1768, at Hampstead, and was bur. at Tottenham.

3. THOMAS LEGGATT, born 1st April, 1769; died June, 1769, of smallpox by inoculation, and was bur. in the vault at Hope.

4. SARAH, born 3rd August, 1770; died at Lichfield, where she had resided over forty years, 28th July, 1845, and was bur. at Elford, near Lichfield.

<sup>1</sup> "The consul's emoluments are superior to those in any other country. I have heard them rated at 100,000 roubles per annum, including the Hanoverian agency; this situation is held by Sir Daniel Bayley, Knt., which he obtained through the interest of Mr. Samuel Thornton, his late partner in London. The society of these few families is limited to each other; they have little intercourse with the Russians, and do not seem forward in showing hospitality to strangers."—Visit to St. Petersburg in the Winter of 1829-30, by Thomas Raikes, p. 182.

6. MARY ANNE, born 21st April, 1774; died at Hampstead, 29th December, 1789, aged sixteen, and was bur. at Tottenham. To commemorate this young lady, John Aikin, M.D., wrote the following verses, which, with a portrait, were printed on a broadside:—<sup>1</sup>

TO THE MEMORY OF
MARY ANNE BAYLEY,

WHO DIED DECEMBER 29TH, 1789. AGED SIXTEEN.

When loveliness array'd in opening Bloom,
Framed to delight the Sense, the Heart to cheer,
Sinks early blasted to the silent Tomb,
Who can suppress the Sigh, restrain the Tear?

Such was the Treasure lost, these lines record;
And on the stone perused by kindred Eyes
Long shall that Name in faithful memory stored,
Bid Sorrows flow, and keen Regrets arise.

But Faith sheds comfort on the troubled mind,
And Gratitude recounts what once was given,
To Him who lent it be the Boon resigned!
What soul too spotless, kind, and good for Heav'n?

residence at Trinity College, Cambridge, and in 1800 took the degree of B.A. and was first prizeman of the junior and in the following year of the senior bachelors. He was then pronounced by Porson to be the first Greek scholar of his standing in England. In October, 1802, he was elected fellow of his college, and became M.A. in the following year and D.D. in 1824. He was ordained by Dr. Majendie, bishop of Chester, whose chaplain he became. He shortly afterwards became preceptor to Mr. W. E. Tomline, son of the bishop of Lincoln, and received from the bishop the rectory of Stilton, Huntingdonshire, 1804. In 1805 he was appointed sub-dean of Lincoln, and prebend of Crackpool St. Mary, in Lincoln Cathedral, and was installed 5th July, 1805. In 1806 he became vicar of Hibaldstow, Lincolnshire, and in 1811 rector of Messingham with Bottesford. On going to Lincoln Bayley found that one of the towers was unsafe, and had it taken down; and, as the other tower was now thought to be out of place, that also was removed. The alterations caused considerable ill feeling towards the new sub-dean. Mr. Bayley also had numerous monuments that disfigured the walls of the cathedral removed, and placed in a small chapel, thus restoring some of its pristine beauty to the interior of the cathedral. Acting on Dr. Bayley's advice, the Chapter sold, from the Cathedral Library, some Caxtons to Dibdin for a very small sum, and with the proceeds purchased "more useful" books. Dr. Bayley established a joint-stock library in Lincoln, and in 1813 founded some schools on the Madras system. At Messingham he made numerous improvements and alterations in the church. He purchased from the Manchester Collegiate Church, then undergoing extensive "improvements," some stained-glass windows, which he placed in Messingham Church. In 1823 he became archdeacon of Stow, and in 1826 rector of Westmeon with Privet, Hampshire, resigning at the same time his living at Messingham. Sunday was the favourite day of the Hampshire villagers for playing cricket, and this desecration of the Lord's Day Dr. Bayley endeavoured in his own parish to summarily put a stop to; but this aroused the anger of the parishioners. He then tried other methods; he established a Sunday afternoon service, but this only delayed Sunday playing until a little later in the day, as the farm boys brought their bats under their smocks and left them in the porch during service, after which they proceeded to the village green and began playing. Dr. Bayley then induced the farmers to allow their labourers several hours on the week-days for the game, and he had the satisfaction of thus having abolished what, though Sunday recreation had been by no means discouraged by the early English reformers, he considered to be a profanation of the Christian Sabbath. In 1828 he exchanged the sub-deanery of Lincoln for a canonry of Westminster. He died 12th August, 1844, and was bur. at Westmeon. The following passage from a MS. note by Archdeacon Bonney, in a copy of Archdeacon Bayley's "Charge," formerly in the possession of Mr. J. E. Bailey, is worth quoting: "In person he [Dr. Bayley] was of the middle size, inclining at one time to corpulency. His countenance was full and expressive of benevolence; his manner good-humoured, sprightly, and friendly, mixed often with a vein of drollery which enlivened the spirits of his companion. He was earnest in his religion without affectation, and a true member of the Church of England, spending large sums out of his own income in her cause, particularly towards refitting of the church at Messingham and a new church in his parish of Westmeon, which was nearly completed at the time of his decease. In the last years of his life he became blind and infirm, and died of natural decay without a pang or sigh." Archdeacon Bayley married, at Eccles, 17th June, 1807, Hannah, second daughter of James Touchet, of Broom House, to whom he was related, her grandmother having been a daughter of James Bayley, senior. Mrs. Bayley died, without issue, 17th June, 1839, and was bur. at Westmeon.

11. CHARLES, born 13th March, 1780, and was bap. at his grandmother's house in Manchester. He was appointed a writer in the Bengal Civil Service in 1797. He was assistant to the secretary of the Board of Trade, 1798; assistant to the commercial resident at Khairpur (Mr. Wilton, whose niece he married), 1798; assistant to the salt agent at Tam-luk, 1802, and commercial resident at Santipur, 1809. In 1811 he was appointed sub-export-warehouse-keeper and reporter-general of external and internal commerce; in 1819 a junior member of the Board of Trade; in 1823, commercial resident at Benares, Gorakhpur; in 1831, acting commercial resident at Santipur. In 1833 he returned home and retired from the Company's service in August, 1836.<sup>1</sup> He died at Cambridge Square, Hyde Park, on 19th January, 1865, and was bur. at St. Leonards-on-Sea. ## VII.

SIR EDWARD CLIVE BAYLEY, K.C.S.I., C.I.E., only surviving son of Edward Clive Bayley, was born at St. Petersburg, 17th October, 1821, and, after having distinguished himself at Haileybury, entered the Bengal Civil Service in 1842. He commenced his official career at Allahabad, and subsequently held appointments at Meerut, Bulandshahr, and Rohtak. On the annexation of the Panjab, he was appointed a deputy-commissioner, and entered on his duties at Gujârât in 1849. In the same year he became under-secretary to the Government of India in the Foreign Department. In 1851 he was appointed deputy-commissioner of the Kangra district of the Punjab, but in 1854 ill-health compelled him to take furlough in England. He was called to the Bar in 1857, and, shortly after the outbreak of the Mutiny, returned to India, and was ordered in September, 1857, to Allahabad, where he acted as one of the under-secretaries in Sir John P. Grant's provisional government, and afterwards as magistrate at Allahabad. In 1859 he was appointed judge in the Futtehghurh district, and afterwards was judicial commissioner at Lucknow, and judge at Agra. For a short time he acted as foreign secretary to the Government of India, and in March, 1862, became home secretary. This post he filled until 1872, when he was appointed to a temporary vacancy in the council. In the following year he became an ordinary member of the Supreme Council, which post he filled until his retirement from the civil service in April, 1878. He was created a K.C.S.I. on January 1st, 1877. During his long career in India, Sir E. Clive Bayley was a devoted friend of the natives, and in all the different posts he held their welfare was his chief object. During his leisure hours he studied deeply the history of the people: their traditions, their literature, their arts, and their archæology, and became the chief authority on the numismatic history of India. Sir Edward Clive Bayley was five times elected president of the Bengal Asiatic Society, and was for five years vice-chancellor of the University of Calcutta. Sir Clive Bayley died at Wilmington Lodge, Keymer, on the 30th April, 1884.

A list of Sir Clive Bayley's writings, together with a lengthy biography, appears in the Annual Report for 1884 of the Royal Asiatic Society, of which he was a vice-president.

B.—WILLIAM BUTTERWORTH BAYLEY AND HIS DESCENDANTS.

VI.

WILLIAM BUTTERWORTH BAYLEY (twelfth child of Thomas Butterworth Bayley, F.R.S.), born 3rd November, 1781, and baptized at his grandmother's house in Manchester, 7th January, 1782. He was educated at Winwick and Eton, and went to Trinity College, Cambridge 1798. On 18th June, 1799, he sailed for Bengal, having obtained an appointment in the Bengal Civil Service; and, on reaching India, was entered as a member of the new College of Fort William, which Lord Wellesley had just established for the education of the Indian civil servants. Of the College of Fort William Mr. Bayley was one of the most distinguished alumni. In 1800 he took a second prize in the third class for Hindustani, and in 1802 proved his talent for languages by being in the first class in Persian. On completing his college course he was selected by the Governor-General for the confidential duties of his own office. Here, in company with Metcalfe and others of the cleverest of the young civil servants, Mr. Bayley learned the art of government under Lord Wellesley's eye. He decided to confine himself to the routine of judicial and revenue work. In 1805 he was made deputy-registrar of the Sudder Court, and in 1807 interpreter to the commission for regulating the government and land settlement of the North-Western Provinces. In 1809 he was appointed judge at Dacca Jalalpur; in 1810, judge at Bardwan; and, in 1814, fourth judge of the Provincial Court of Appeal, first at Bareilly and then at Dacca. In 1814 he entered the secretariat as secretary to the Revenue and Judicial departments, and in 1819 became chief secretary to the Government, in which capacity he was of the greatest service to Lord Hastings. In 1822 he temporarily filled a seat at the council, and in 1825 became a regular member of the Supreme Council. In 1828 he filled the office of governor-general of India from March 13th to 4th July, when he became president of the Board of Trade. ## NOTES.

1. Authorities.—This pedigree of the Bayley family is founded to some extent on a MS. pedigree compiled by the Rev. Joseph Hunter, from the information of Mr. Gamaliel Lloyd, and now in the British Museum (Add. MSS. 24, 458, f. 66), which has been recently printed by the Harleian Society, and with a few additions by the late Mr. Croston in his edition of Baines's History of Lancashire. Additional facts as to the early generations are taken from the MSS. of Mr. John Owen, from an unpublished pedigree compiled by Mr. John Eglington Bailey, from Mr. J. Fred Beever's paper in Local Gleanings, i. 103, 166, from the Manchester Court Leet Records and Constable's Accounts, and from a pedigree in the Piccope MSS. in Chetham's Library. The facts concerning the later generations have been obtained from the members of the family who are named in the preface.

2. Origin of the Family.—I have been unable to trace the family beyond the seventeenth century. The name was by no means uncommon in Lancashire and Cheshire at that time. A family tradition, dating apparently from the date of Thomas Butterworth Bayley's stay in Edinburgh, that the Bayleys were descended from a cadet of the Baillies of Linlithgowshire, does not seem to have any foundation in fact, the family having been established in Manchester long before the date assigned for the migration. Mr. J. E. Bailey was of opinion that Thomas Bayley, the first known member of the family, was a native of the neighbourhood of Blackburn, but I do not know on what authority he based his opinion. It is worth mentioning that the unusual spelling of the name is not a recent adoption, but has always been used by the members of the family since the time of Thomas Bayley, who died in 1688.
